Step-by-step Instructions on Accessing the Undergraduate Students Practicum Guide

Please log into the UCI Sites main website page at https://sites.uci.edu. To log in please select the button on the left-hand top corner of your screen titled “Log In”.

You will be taken to the UCInetID login page. Please login using your UCI credentials.

Once you have successfully logged you will be redirected to the sites.uci.edu page. Please select the “My Sites” tab on the left-hand top corner of your screen.
Then select “UCI Program in Public Health”

Then select “Visit Site”

You will then be redirected to our UCI Public Health main website.

You can then search for the practicum guide via the “For Current Students” or “Degrees & Programs/Undergraduate Programs.” Select the “Undergraduate Practicum Guide” via your desired route.
This will allow you to access the guide and all the following sections. Overview: Enrollment information, course structure, how to apply to sites, registration information.

Overview

The Public Health Practicum, or PUBH 199W, is the required capstone course for both Public Health Policy and Public Health Science majors. It is a 9-unit course, double that of a typical class and in turn has two primary purposes.

The first is to provide an opportunity to work in the community of agencies, non-profits, or laboratoires dedicated to public health practice. Students gain practical work experience during the internship, and classroom relates them to analyze the relationships of coursework, discipline-specific paradigms, and the work environment.

This work site allows the second focus of the course: to understand and understand public health.

Practicum Sites: View all approved sites and information on how to apply to sites.
Registration: Once you have received an offer from a site and accepted you can submit your registration via this tab.

Should you have any questions or concerns please contact the community engagement manager at phpracticum@uci.edu.