Naveen Jindal School of Management
Master of Science in Management Science

Program Description
Taught by world-class faculty, the Master of Science in Management Science degree program has been designed for students who need highly marketable managerial and technical expertise. A STEM-designated program, Management Science introduces students to core concepts and foundational skills while allowing them to choose courses from multiple concentrations such as Business Analytics, Information Technology Management, Project Management and Consulting, and more.

This Management Science master’s program has:
• A focused set of four core courses based on market demand.
• A flexibility that allows students to study a variety of specializations.
• Both in-person and online course options.
• 36 months of optional practical training (OPT) for international students.

The goal of the program is to train students in advanced business principles and techniques, to teach them how to develop creative solutions in ever-changing business environments and to utilize their specialized skillsets to ensure their company’s success. With this in mind, students pursuing a Master’s in Management Science can design a program of study with their specific needs in mind, satisfying their elective requirements by taking courses in their preferred area of specialization. These areas include:
• Accounting
• Business Analytics
